

Why have an EAP?

Your company knows that employees are its most valuable resource. The EAP can help you receive the assistance needed to resolve “off the job problems” that can affect “on the job performance”.

Your company recognizes that unresolved problems often have a negative effect on ability to handle day-to-day responsibilities—both at home and at work.

Many people try to avoid dealing with sensitive problems as long as possible. Early attention to such difficulties can often help to avoid costly, burdensome consequences later on.

Employee Assistance Program

Assisting employees and families with solutions to personal and job related issues

What we are

There are times when all of us experience personal difficulties and problems. In most cases, we are able to resolve them ourselves but, sometimes they are more serious and begin to interfere with other areas of our lives or we need to talk to someone.

What may seem like a burden to one person may be lightened when it is shared with someone who can be understanding yet objective. An EAP Counselor is trained to assist you and knows where to find help.

The EAP offers trained, caring counselors to provide assistance in understanding and defining personal problems. Their role is to identify helpful resources and appropriate solutions.

How does the EAP work?

Simply call and identify yourself as an employee of your company, household member or dependent. We will connect you to our qualified EAP provider in your area and authorize their services.

During your first session, a professional, master's level counselor will assist you to identify and evaluate your problem or concern. Possible solutions are discussed and recommendations will be made. In some cases, the EAP can deal with your situation in a few sessions — in other cases a referral may be made to the right resource for additional help.
